*Urban-Community Consolidated System

Community Transportation Systems

Community, or rural, transportation systems provide transportation for the general public and human service agency clients. There are 68 rural single-county transit systems and seven multi-county systems in North Carolina. Most community transit systems provide basic transportation by subscription rides, prearranged by an individual, group or human service agency. They also offer dial-a-ride service, for which prospective riders must call to schedule in advance, and they may offer deviated fixed-route service, in which vehicles may operate off defined routes and schedules.
